CHICKEN POX IS SPREADING FAST

Twenty New Cases Reported this Week. Failure of Parents to Report Cases Blamed for Spread of the Contagion.

Twenty new cases of chicken pox have been reported to Dr. Henry Stewart, secretary of the Board of Health, in the past four days and several other cases are under inspection. The contagion which assumed definite proportions early in the month grew slowly until this week when it suddenly spread with remarkable strides.

Since March 6 thirty one cases have been reported and twenty two families are included in these. The advance of the contagion is due partly, it is believed, to the failure of parents to report cases.

The fine for this is from $20 to $100 under the state law while the borough ordinance provides for fines of from $5.00 to $20.00. Should definite information and evidence be obtained of efforts to avoid having cases reported the offenders will be prosecuted to the limit.

The modified quarantine imposed by the Board of Health has the house placarded during the existence of the disease and keeps the patients and any other children in the household from school for a period of twenty one days. The placards warn people of the presence of the disease in the house and their entrance into the place is at the risk of further spreading of the contagion.

HURT PLAYING ACROBAT

Stanley Shultz, of York Springs, narrowly escaped serious injury one day recently while trying to do some acrobatic work at George W. Miller's blacksmith shop at the upper end of the town. Shultz was attempting to do some acts on a rope. He had thrown a rope over one of the joists in the shop and making a loop in the one end placed his left foot in it and drew himself up about six feet from the floor and attempted to kick the roof with both feet at once the result being that his foot slipped out and he landed on his side on the concrete floor.

He was stunned and it was several hours before he recovered from the effects of the fall.

MUST NOT SELL YOUNG RABBITS

Felix Foller, Local Representative of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, to Protect Chicks also.

Felix Foller, local representative of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, stated this morning that he intends to enforce rigidly the law prohibiting the sale of little chicks and rabbits by store keepers during the coming Easter season. The society has in former years caused the arrest of numerous dealers in other towns and cities for the offense.

Business men who have been in the habit of offering for sale little chickens and rabbits, guinea pigs and other animals, or displaying them in show windows, will be warned against the practice and Mr. Foller will be on the lookout for offenders. Exclusive dealers in animals or poultry are excepted, as their business fits them for the handling of the young fowl or rabbits, the law contends. The exposing of the birds or rabbits, according to the society, is cruelty unless they are accompanied by the mother chicken or rabbit.

One of the results of selling the young chicken or rabbit, it is said, is the fact that they often become the plaything of children and are treated more as such than as living beings.

ARE STRANDED IN THE CITY

Report from Philadelphia that Adams County Woman and Family Fail in Effort to Find Husband and Father. Take Dog Along.

A story of an Adams County family stranded in Philadelphia with their faithful dog is printed this morning in the Philadelphia Record, which says:

Mrs. Mary Nagy, her two children and Rover, a shepherd dog, which is highly prized because it saved the life of her little girl, became stranded in this city yesterday. Mrs. Nagy, the children, accompanied, of course, by the dog, came from Heidelsburg, Adams county, Pa., and according to arrangements were to meet Daniel Nagy, the husband. The woman and children and dog waited at Broad Street Station until an officer approached her, to whom she told her story, and she, the child and Rover were taken to the City Hall, where Mrs. Nagy was questioned by Detective Joseph Shay. She said that her husband, who is a moulder, had come to Philadelphia a week ago and obtained employment. He had sent for her and the children and told them to be sure and bring Rover along. Mrs. Nagy mislaid the letter, but she remembered that he had mentioned Fourth and George streets. This neighborhood was searched but no one of the name of Nagy could be found.

Mr. Shay obtained for the present a home for Mrs. Nagy and her children, but the dog was barred. The woman then declared that she would not part with Rover, and after some time another person was discovered by the detective who promised to take good care of the dog until the husband was found and the family became settled in a new home. When Rover was being taken from the complaint room of the Detective Bureau by the man who promised to be his friend Mrs. Nagy broke down and cried bitterly, as did also the child whose life he had saved. At first Rover refused to go, but Mrs. Nagy told him to go and he went.

Mrs. Nagy's two children were Irene, two years old, and John eight months old. The woman, between smiles and tears, told the story of how Rover had saved Irene's life. When the little girl was 18 months old she wandered from the doorstep on which she was playing and fell into a stream which ran near the house. Rover dashed into the stream and, gripping her clothes in his mouth, dragged her out of the water.

Inquiry at Heidelsburg and vicinity fail to disclose any knowledge of the Nagy family.

FATHER ARRESTS SON FOR STEALING $50

Lad Sent to Reformatory on Parent's Complaint.

Savannah, Ga., March 24.—R. L. Horne, postmaster at Ludwici, Liberty county, brought his own son, Walter, into the presence of a United States court judge to be punished for having robbed the postoffice at Ludwici of $50.

The boy's father did all the talking for the two, saying the money had been stolen and the boy should be punished. No attorney had been employed, and the tragedy of the case appealed so strongly to J. S. Samuel B. Adams, formerly a supreme court justice of Georgia, who was present, that he interceded in the boy's behalf.

Judge Emery Speer sent the boy to the reformatory at Washington for a year and a day.

WILL ARREST POLICE CHIEF

Head of State Police to Issue Warrants.

TWO OF HIS MEN UNDER BAIL

State Troopers Were Beaten and Thrown Into Jail While Attempting to Arrest a Suspect.

Clifton Heights, March 24.—After being badly beaten and arrested by a policeman of this borough, two members of the state police force, Charles Dickinson and William Gaskin, members of the Pottsville troop, were taken to Media and kept in the county jail until 1:30 in the morning, when they were released on $100 bail furnished by Burgess Carroll Thayer, of Swarthmore.

Major John C. Groome, superintendent of state police, sent word from Philadelphia that he had issued warrants for the arrest of the two men whose actions led to the beating up of the state troopers.

Dickinson and Gaskin were on duty in civilian clothes in Clifton Heights, having been assigned there at the request of District Attorney MacDade to investigate the numerous hold-ups which have terrorized this place for several months past. So hold have these occurrences become that District Attorney MacDade had requested John C. Groome, superintendent of state police, for assistance, and the two troopers were part of the force detailed to catch the hold-up men.

They were attempting to arrest William Kain, a resident of Clifton Heights, and had taken him to the trolley station on Baltimore pike, where the tracks of the Philadelphia and Garrettsville street railway cross the pike, when John A. McGowan, the borough chief of police, interfered. He refused to accept the troopers' word that they were policemen and sought to release Kain. This led to a general fight, in which other residents joined, and the troopers were badly beaten.

The chief says the strangers ordered him to move on or they'd blow his head off. He, in turn, threatened to arrest them. He was in uniform, which indicated his authority.

Following these words, the strangers, without explaining—according to the chief—that they were troopers, drew blackjacks and began beating him over the head.

Before Magistrate Clevenger, the strangers asserted that they were troopers and showed state badges. The magistrate refused to recognize any authority for the conduct with which they were charged and demanded $1000 bail, which was later furnished.

THOROUGHBREDS FOR ARMY

Six Virginia Hunters for Mounts of Officers at London Horse Show.

Washington, March 24.—Half a dozen fine Virginia horses were purchased in the region of Warrenton by a detachment of army officers headed by Colonel Charles J. Treat, who went there to look up thoroughbreds for the use of the American army officers who will take part in the forthcoming horse show at Olympia, near London.

Wealthy New York men made up a purse for the purpose of purchasing riding horses of the best types obtainable in this country, to be utilized in the international contest, and the animals purchased were in pursuance of this agreement. They are hunters, used to taking Virginia fences, and it is believed that they will make a magnificent showing in London. The finest cavalry officers and cavaliers of the service will form the party.

SHACKLEFORD AS CZAR

Uncle Joe's Critic Busiest Committee Maker of Them All.

Washington, March 24.—It was Representative Dorsey W. Shackelford, of Missouri, who started the fight against the power of the speaker of the house as the maker of committees.

He loved to call Uncle Joe Cannon a czar. In the committee on ways and means, to which the Democratic caucus had delegated the committee making power of the house, it is Shackelford who is taking the lead in the committee making work.

His thirteen associates on the committee are worried about Shackelford. They say that he is the most ardent committee maker in the whole group. He is for organizing the house right now.

"Shackelford is going to be the czar of the next house if he can," say his fellows.

REPEAL INHERITANCE TAX

Governor Dix Says It Has Driven Capital From New York State.

Albany, N. Y., March 24.—Governor Dix sent a special message to the legislature, recommending the repeal of the progressive inheritance law, passed at the extraordinary session of the legislature last year, which, he says, has "caused removal of capital from the state in an alarming amount."

"It cannot be known at this time," says the message, "that the operation of the new law will result in any material ultimate gain in revenue, but it is known beyond a doubt that the change has caused removal of capital from the state in an alarming amount. In a recent conference of financial officers in New York city, especially familiar with the situation, it was stated that to the knowledge of those present the funds thus removed already exceed $400,000,000, and that the number of citizens which the state has already lost in consequence was very large. The continued operation of this law would, within a relatively short time, undoubtedly reduce the volume of revenue, which may be had from taxation of inheritances."

BOY SKIPS SCHOOL; GETS 18 MONTHS

Nine-Year-Old Lad Gets Severe Sentence.

Passaic, N. J., March 24.—Though he is only nine years old, Thomas Bednash was sentenced by Judge Scott to eighteen months in the reformatory at Jamesburg, for playing truant and enticing other boys from their studies.

It was his eleventh appearance before Judge Scott in two years. His only reason for his conduct was "my teacher whipped me and I wouldn't stand for that."

Truant Officer Weber said Bednash's last offense was keeping thirteen classmates from school for periods ranging from a day to two weeks, and that his influence over his comrades was detrimental to the school system.

Bednash appeared even younger than nine years. He had a baby face and bangs hung over his forehead, but he spoke like a lad of twelve.

A PERIL OF THE SEA

By ALBERT TUCKER KENYON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When an ocean liner has been out a couple of days if the weather is fair those who have had mal de mer begin to find their way on deck. Women recline in steamer chairs comfortably tucked in with rugs, many of them slightly pale, but gaining color from the pure ocean atmosphere.

It was on such an occasion that I first saw a lady whose face at once interested me. I was young, and young men are very sensible to beauty. This girl was not so especially beautiful as striking. Her eyes and eyebrows were a dark brown, while her hair was a chestnut with a tinge of red in it. It was this contrast that attracted me.

Now, I am quite willing to confess that, under other circumstances I might simply have admired the artistic combination of milky skin, dark eyes and Titian hair without having given the girl another thought. But, as I have said, in fair weather at sea one is under different influences, or, rather, free to be moved by any influence. We had left New York in a snowstorm and were now on the bosom of the warm waters of the gulf stream. Though we needed our wraps, there was a pleasant softness in the air in marked contrast with the winter we had left. Not only did I feel a delightful relaxation, but I was not troubled with a multiplicity of things to look at. I saw only the sky, the ocean and the ship, and on the ship I looked only at the young girl who charmed me.

As luck would have it a friend of mine who was aboard stepped up to the young lady and spoke to her. I was delighted. An introduction was assured to me. Within an hour I was sitting beside Miss Manning, chatting with her.

We were making the Mediterranean trip and, since we had been out only two days, ten or eleven days remained to me to enjoy Miss Manning's society. How impressive a young man who has nothing to do but be impressed! I confess that I had no right to be impressed, for I was engaged to a very lovely woman. The trouble with me was an artistic temperament. I had been caught by a peculiar condition of beauty. I did not find Miss Manning especially intellectual, especially entertaining, but ever before me was that singular combination of features.

I did not at first realize the danger for me, an engaged man, to put myself under the influence of another woman, even if the attraction was in that which appealed alone to an abnormal sense for beauty. Before we reached the Azores I began to fear for myself, and when we reached Madeira and we went ashore together and walked in the garden of Funchal, redolent with the perfume of tropical flowers, I knew that I was lost.

I had written something daily to my fiancée to post from our first landing point, but somehow I could not drop it in the purser's box to be mailed. I glanced over what I had written, and so completely had I passed under a new spell that I wondered how I could ever have been under any other. I tore my letter into bits. From Madeira to Gibraltar I was in an agony between a sense of honor, shame and self condemnation on the one hand and infatuation on the other. From Gibraltar to Naples I sank into absolute resistance and self contempt.

I had not the assurance nor was I expected to attach myself to the Manning family during their stay in Italy. So I left them, intending to meet them in a few months in Switzerland. I had not spoken my infatuation—I cannot call it love—to Miss Manning, for I could not bring myself to act so contemptibly while I was still betrothed to another. I hoped the conditions might be changed before our next meeting, though what was to change them except some dishonorable act on my part I did not know.

I had not been separated from my fellow traveler a week before the chains that bound me to her began to drop off of their own weight. Then it first occurred to me that I had been captivated by a peculiar beauty. I saw so many different types of beauty in the galleries of Italy that I suppose I became surfeited. Still, I could not call up the image of Miss Manning without backsliding.

Three months passed, and I joined the Mannings at Lausanne, on Lake Geneva. When Miss Manning came into the room where I waited for her I stood mute with astonishment. Her Titian hair had turned into a dark brown, like her eyebrows.

"You are surprised at my appearance," she said. "Let me explain. Before leaving America I had suffered from a fever. On recovering my hair came out rapidly, and I had it shaved shortly before I sailed. I ordered a wig of a color to match my eyebrows, but before it was sent home I tried on one belonging to grandma. It was so becoming that I determined to wear it."

In a twinkling my enthralment was gone. The young lady saw the change in my features, which were expressive of my feelings, and looked disappointed. But I felt a certain confidence in being freed from my conflicting emotions. I made my call short and never have seen Miss Manning from that day to this.

I had great difficulty in making up with my fiancée, who knew very well from my letters, which had been few and far between, to say nothing of the absence of feeling in them, that something was wrong.

AMERICANS SHOT AS INSURGENTS

Four Summarily Put to Death
by Mexicans.

REPUBLIC FACES A CRISIS

Limantour Says Diaz Must Keep Up
Fight on Rebels—Reforms Will Be Given to People.

San Antonio, Texas, March 24.—
John Hamilton Dignowitty, well known here as "Ham" Dignowitty, and three other Americans have been shot to death under orders of a Mexican court-martial, for participation in the insurrection, according to a dispatch received by members of the Digno-witty family.

The news came in a dispatch to Fred Dignowitty, a cousin of the executed man, but gave him no particulars, aside from the allegation that the execution was the order of a drumhead court-martial.

"Ham" Dignowitty was thirty years old, and was engaged in the cattle and mining business in the state of Chihuahua.

H. M. Burns, a mining man with interests in northern Mexico, arrived in San Antonio. Burns declared that the closing of the mines had thrown many Americans out of work, and that more than 150, having no other way of living, were now with the insurrectos.

In addition, Burns said, there were probably fifty American adventurers
with the insurgents, but the majority were mining men out of work.

DIAZ MUST KEEP UP FIGHT

Limantour Admits Mexican Situation
Is Serious.

Mexico City, March 24.—Admitting that Mexico is facing a crisis ever greater than he had believed, Finance Minister Limantour said the administration has no definite plans for the solution of the problems confronting the government.

It has no alternative but to continue the military campaign on which it had entered, he said. Notwithstanding the government's aggressive attitude, reforms which were intended to remedy the alleged grievances are under consideration. The most important of these reforms is that relative to the revision of the electoral laws.

There is no disposition on the government's part to oppose any wise reforms which might be demanded by a reasonable public. At the same time, the administration does not propose to accede to demands backed up by arguments of arms.

In a word, the administration recognized two classes in the dissatisfied public—one represented by the intelligent but non-combatant element, and the other by the followers of Madero.
For the latter the administration has no terms other than those formulated
at the war department.

Such is the program announced by Limantour as the result of conferences with President Diaz and other members of the cabinet.

One of the first acts of congress,
which will convene on April 1, will be the consideration of a new appropriation for carrying on the war. Whether this means an increase in the military force, Senator Limantour did not say.
It has already been officially stated that Mexico's war resources scarcely have been touched, and that an army of 50,000 men could be put in the field
if necessary.

Touching on the reform relative to the division of great estates, the minister said the method of acquiring these properties had not been worked out. He reaffirmed his Paris statement that such a division of the land
would be desirable.

Any new electoral law would, in the opinion of the minister, have to be the subject of most careful consideration and would need to be so framed as to eliminate illiterate voters. Although this proposed change in the electoral laws would not be intended as any concession to the rebels, it is the basic feature of their demands,
according to statements made repeatedly by Madero and his associates.

FIRED ON U. S. SOLDIERS?

It Is Said Mexican Federal Troops
Fired on Patrol.

San Antonio, Texas, March 24.—
Though Brigadier General Joseph W.
Duncan has received from his subordinate officers on the extended border patrol in southwestern Texas no confirmation of the report that American soldiers were fired on by Mexican federal troops in the vicinity of Presidio,
a report of the incident has been forwarded to Attorney General Wickersham in Washington, and authentic verification of the news came from various sources.

According to a telegram received from Presidio, not only was the patrol
under command of Sergeant Long made the target for several shots from across the river, but a band of insur-
rects crossed into American territory
at the isolated town of Lajitas, and after spending some hours on Texas soil, returned to their own post outside the beleaguered town of Ojinaga.

HELEN TAFT'S FRIEND ELOPES

Society Debutante Disappoints

New York Millionaire.

Washington, March 24.—Society
here is still busy with the romantic match of Miss Elsa Portner, a friend of Miss Helen Taft, and one of the most attractive debutantes of the season, who eloped to Baltimore and was married to Lorimer C. Graham, who, with his father, is interested in a lithographing plant.

Miss Portner's parents are said to have wished her to marry a New York millionaire, who was a suitor for her hand, and to have discouraged Mr.
Graham's attentions.

When the elopement became known
the bride said:

"It was a love match, and I supposed we could keep our marriage secret for a time. However, now that the cat is out of the bag, we shall go to Lakewood and visit mother."

All Proceedings Against George B.
Cox Are Temporarily Halted.

Cincinnati, O., March 24.—George B.
Cox's attorneys obtained a temporary injunction from the circuit court restraining Judge Gorman, of the court of common pleas, from proceeding
with the case against the indicted political leader.

The injunction will stay all proceedings against Cox until the circuit court has disposed of the writ of mandamus by which he seeks to compel Presiding Judge Hunt, of the common pleas, to rule definitely whether Cox's affidavit of bias against Gorman will operate to swear that jurist
of the bench in the Cox case.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 24.—Recom-

cratic and Keystone parties confer ground on which they may get together, Colonel J. M. Guffey, Democratic national committeeman, gave ing of representative members and their executive committees of both the Democratic and Keystone parties,

to fully discuss and consider the unfortunate circumstances, and their cause, that prevailed in last year's state campaign, and to try to get together in a spirit of harmony in a sane and legal way, for the betterment
of the party in the state.

"If a meeting of this kind can be had, it not alone can be done legally,
but the outcome will have concerted and moral support.

"There is no state ticket to be elected this year, but there are county
tickets to be elected, and with a satisfactory agreement reached between the Democratic and the Keystone state organizations, it will be a very easy matter to jointly combine and agree on county tickets in every county in the state.

"And is not that all there is to this years' campaign? Then take care of your county tickets; never mind 1912,
that will take care of itself.

"The insincere and shameless motives that actuated the so-called reorganization movement and its methods are by this time, perhaps, so well understood that the party will be glad to encourage some movement that has
for its object an honest uniting of the party on broad and manly lines."

RECIPROCITY TALK

Canadian Farmers Are Anxious for Treaty, President Hears.

Washington, March 24.—The Canadian farmer, as well as the Canadian merchant, is in favor of reciprocity with the United States, according to Representative Philip Pitt Campbell,
of Kansas, who called at the White House to tell President Taft what he had seen in a trip into the dominion designed to gain information on the subject of reciprocity.

"In all parts of Canada," he said, "I found those who favor the treaty doing so because they said it removes what they call our tariff barrier and lets the products of their farmers into our markets free of duty. Farmers everywhere complain that now they cannot fairly compete with American farmers, for when they send any of their products here they get our prices, less the duty. Farmers, fishermen, lumber, pulp and paper men expect to be benefited to the amount of the tariff removed by the treaty."

HATPIN JABS HIS NOSE

Lawmaker Wounded by One of the
"Dangerous Weapons."

Providence, R. I., March 24.—The crusade against long hatpins gained a strong supporter in Representative John B. Leclerc, who, after being wounded by one of the so-called "dangerous weapons," announced that he would introduce a bill in the legislature limiting the length of this feminine accessory.

While riding to the state house Representative Leclerc was stabbed in the nose by a long hatpin protruding from then w spring headgear of a woman passenger. The steel sank deep and blood flowed freely.

Raise in Freight Rates Held Up.

Washington, D. C., March 24.—General advances in rates, both class and commodity, from points in Oklahoma to points in Texas, were suspended by the interstate commerce commission from March 25 to July 20. The rates were filed by F. A. Leland, as agent for the southwestern lines.

Fall From Carriage Kills.

Lancaster, March 24.—A. B. Moore, a prominent building contractor, was thrown from his carriage during a runaway, and landed on his head. He sustained injuries which resulted in his death.

Suffragettes to Meet in Louisville.

New York, March 24.—The National Woman Suffrage association has accepted the invitation of the Kentucky Equal Rights Society to hold its next annual convention in Louisville, October 19 to 24, inclusive.

THE HOTBED.

As there are always those every spring who are taking up gardening for the first time it will be in place to again give simple directions for making the hotbed, which will not only pay for itself in the toothsome radishes and lettuce which it will provide for the table, but also in furnishing tomato, cabbage, cauliflower, pepper, eggplant, etc., for transplanting into the open ground. The location of the bed is important, and preferably this should be on the south side of a building or tight board fence, where the sun's rays will be cornered. The length and width of the hotbed will depend upon one's purpose and upon the dimension of the window sash which are available. The frame should be so built that the sash will slope to the south five or six inches and may be built about a trench dug in the ground or made of wider stuff set on the ground and banked with manure. We have tried both ways and prefer the former. Into the pit prepared should be placed eight or ten inches of fresh horse manure containing about one-third short straw or other litter, which will keep it from heating too rapidly. The chemical reaction which generates the heat will be hastened if a few pails of water are poured over the manure. This should be allowed to heat some before the earth is put in, which should be of a rich, mellow loam if possible and spread evenly to a depth of five inches. The sash should then be put on and things allowed to warm up. When the air in the bed shows a temperature of about 70 degrees the seed may be planted in rows or broadcast, as one may prefer. The bed should be watered frequently enough to keep the soil moist, and if the thermometer or hand shows the bed is getting too hot the sash should be lifted during the day to permit ventilation. Where one does not have window sash for the purpose white cotton cloth tacked on a frame will answer the same purpose if the weather is not too severe and will make the bed self ventilating. As a safeguard against a cold snap pieces of old carpet or canvas or a pile of straw with which to cover the bed should be kept handy. Before the plants which are to be transferred to the open ground are removed the sash should be removed entirely to allow the plants to toughen.

A CODLING MOTH PARASITE.

A codling moth parasite has been discovered by Professor E. P. Taylor in Grand valley, Colorado, that bids fair to be a great aid to orchardists in the incessant warfare which they have to wage against this worst insect foe of the apple family. The parasite, which is in reality a tiny bee, is so small that it takes eighty-three of the bees placed end to end to cover the space of an inch, while two or three of them find ample room in a codling moth egg, which is not larger than the eye end of a medium sized needle. Professor Taylor has been observing the work of this bee for the past four years, but not until the past summer has the insect been present in sufficient numbers to make effective inroads against the codling moth. The tiny bee searches out the freshly laid moth eggs, pierces their shells and deposits its eggs within. The eggs of the parasite hatch in a couple of days and at once begin to devour the contents of the egg. Eggs thus attacked turn to an unnatural black color. On reaching its growth the bee cuts an opening through the shell of the egg and emerges as a red dish, four winged microscopic bee-like insect. All orchardists who have been through the exacting and not entirely pleasant process of spraying will hope that this little insect friend may greatly multiply and penetrate to every corner of the land where apples are grown.

A DASTARDLY PROPOSITION.

Press dispatches of a couple of weeks ago told of the proposal to perpetrate one of the most dastardly agricultural outrages which have ever been recorded in this country. It seems to have been a scheme hatched by two or three New York cotton speculators who had laid a plan to scatter through Georgia and South Carolina 1,000,000 cotton boll weevils so that the fields in these states would be attacked by the pest and the yield of cotton correspondingly reduced and the prices boosted. It is estimated that at the rate at which the weevil is spreading from the west and central southern states it will be about two years before this enemy of the cotton plant will reach the territory above referred to, but how any man or group of men could be so absolutely money mad as to conceive the idea of hastening the spread of the insect when the combined federal and state insect fighting forces are doing all in their power to hold it in check is absolutely incomprehensible. It would be hard indeed to devise a punishment that would be adequate for an offense of this kind.

If the Danish dairyman can make money in dairying on $700 and $800 land and the farmer on the Jersey and Guernsey islands can make a good living and something besides on land worth from $1,000 to $1,200 per acre and buy high priced imported feeds to boot, it looks as if the farmers of the United States on lands worth from $80 to $150 per acre and capable of producing all of the raw stuff needed in the turning out of finished dairy products had about the surest and easiest map that could be imagined.

KILL THE CODLING MOTH.

Takes Too Much Toll of Apple Crop For Careful Growers' Comfort.

Data collected by the Maryland department of agriculture indicate that from 40 to 60 per cent of the annual apple yield of the state is injured by the codling moth, which makes much of it unfit for market and some almost worthless for home use.

Natural enemies of the codling moth cannot be counted upon to hold it in check enough to keep it from injuring almost the entire crop of apples in orchards where some artificial means of control is not used.

Cultural methods of fighting the moth include not only cultivation, but also keeping the dead scales of bark scraped off the trees, pruning and burning the rubbish which naturally accumulates in the orchard, keeping fallen apples picked up and either used or destroyed and in some cases thinning the fruit. Entire control of the pest, however, is secured only by spraying, thorough, repeated and persistent spraying, at the right time with the right materials and with the right kind of apparatus.

In spraying for the codling moth—

Is necessary to consider several facts. First, the insect causes injury by eating into the fruit, and rarely does the spray come into actual contact with the insect; therefore the so called contact sprays, such as are used for scale

WORK OF CODLING MOTH, SHOWING BORINGS.
[From bulletin Maryland agricultural experiment station.]

Insects or plant lice, should not be employed, but stomach poisons, such as paris green, arsenate of lead or other arsenicals, must be used. Second, the insect enters the fruit usually within forty-eight hours after hatching and is thereafter beyond our reach, so the spray must be applied in time. Third, the hatching period for the eggs of one brood extends over a considerable space of time; therefore to get the best results two or more sprayings must be given. Fourth, in Maryland there are two broods of the codling moth, and to prevent injury by the second brood larvae one or more midsummer sprayings may be applied. In spraying for first brood larvae it must be borne in mind that they enter the fruit at the calyx; therefore the spray must be applied before the lobes of the calyx close enough to exclude the spray. Fifth, sprays followed immediately by heavy rains should be repeated. Sixth, spray only with a pump which will give good pressure, not less than eight pounds, and over a hundred pounds is much better, so as to force the spray into the calyx. Do not spray until nearly all the petals have fallen from the blossoms, on account of danger of injury to the blossoms and risk of killing bees, which are important agents of pollination.

Small Change.
At a dinner given by Andrew Carnegie an eminent judge, seated halfway down the table, was deeply immersed in conversation with his neighbor when the host opened up the subject of the British coinage system and showed signs of wishing undivided attention.

"Every other civilized nation," he declaimed, "has the decimal system, while England adheres to the absurd and cumbersome table of pounds, shillings and pence." (Rap, rap, rap)

The raps were for the judge, who remained absorbed in his own conversation. "And even furtherings," continued the ironmaster—"is there anything else in finance so ridiculous as the farthing?" (Rap, rap)

The judge glanced around somewhat impatiently.

"Judge G.," Mr. Carnegie called out, "why do the British continue their coinage of farthings?"

"To enable the Scotch to practice benevolence," Mr. Carnegie returned the judge.—Success Magazine.

FELL ON HIS PILLOW.

Then Came a Joyous Time For the Skating Rink Patrons.

When Mr. Homer Davenport was a boy roller skating reached Silverton. In his book, "The Country Boy," he tells of his plan to learn without getting hurt, as he thought falling about the skating rink was no joke. He borrowed a pair of overalls of the stoutest man in the village and a long pillow from his mother's bed and believed the game as good as won when he entered the door of the rink:

I lowered the pillow into the seat of the overalls after I had put them on and then got a boy to hold the pillow up against my back while I put my vest over it, and I dived into the thick of the skaters. To my astonishment, I didn't fall. I leaned back and tried to fall once to see how it would be, and I really couldn't. I'd been skating fifteen minutes when I did fall, but fell forward and slammed my hands on the floor.

An elderly lady, who had had some troubles of her own that afternoon, skated up to me and told me she thought perhaps we went at it too fast. So we were leaning against the wall, talking over the scientific points of it when I gave the audience a rare treat.

While leaning there, talking, all at once my feet, that were close together, started and rolled out toward the middle of the room. I don't think I bent a finger, but I fell exactly like a tree, and to and behold, the pillow burst. It must have been five minutes before they got through laughing all over the house. In that time the feathers were so thick they followed in a boiling streak after every skater.

The manager declared a recess of ten minutes while they swept out the hall, and at this point came another big laugh, as after three men had been sweeping twenty minutes they hadn't got over three feathers out into the street.

Some fellow suggested sprinkling, so they did, but most of them were in the air and wouldn't come down to be sprinkled, so they had to close the rink for the afternoon.

The manager of the rink tried to collect damages from my father, and I think there was a compromise made.

Thought He Needed Them.

Miss Amelia Austin listened with breathless attention to Mrs. Amasa Hunting's radiant account of the doings of James Hunting, her husband's younger brother, who had left Woburn-in-the-Hills in his youth and had become a millionaire.

"Where is Jim this summer?" Miss Amelia inquired at the end of the recital.

"He has gone abroad for baths," replied Mrs. Hunting.

"I ain't no mite surprised to hear that," Miss Amelia said. "His mother never could make him wash his neck."

ing a man was tried for murder. After the evidence was in and the speeches made the jury retired to deliberate. Presently word came that the jury had agreed and had framed a verdict. The judge ordered the jury into the courtroom and asked for the verdict.

"We find," read the foreman, "that the defendant is guilty of murder and assess his punishment at ninety-nine years and life imprisonment."

"Go back and write another verdict," ordered the judge.

Presently the jury returned with the verdict of life imprisonment.

The sergeant shook hands with all the jurors.

"He seems pleased," said a bystander to the bailiff. "Why is he shaking hands with the men who convicted him?"

"Why," was the reply, "he is thanking them for taking ninety-nine years off his sentence."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

How To Get Fat

Use Samose, Says The People's Drug Store and Put on Good Flesh.

The almost universal interest in physical culture is the best evidence that can be offered as to the need of a simple and scientific method of making thin people fat, increasing strength and restoring health.

Athletics, when carried to an extreme, often result in straining the vital organs. How much better it would be for the average person to regain health, strength and flesh by using Samose. This flesh forming food is assimilated as soon as it enters the stomach; it helps the organs to assimilate the food and extract the flesh forming elements; it builds up the muscles and rounds out the limbs into shapely plumpness.

Samose has been so successful in making thin people fat and restoring the weak and run down to strength and health that The People's Drug Store, the popular druggists, sells it under their personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not benefit.
